GYLA starts a monitoring project, relating to the murders committed against women in 2014

Within the frames of the project, each case of murders against women will be examined; it will be analyzed whether the actions of the relevant state bodies was effective, timely and adequate for the protection of the violence victims (in cases when the victims have addressed those state bodies). GYLA will also examine the process of investigation of those murders. GYLA will further elaborate recommendations to resolve the problems, identified as a result of the research.
