The unlawfully dismissed person reached an amicable settlement on a court dispute

GYLA represented a person who has been working on a position as a manager in the Government of the Autonomous Republic of Adjara since 2013. In March 2020, a disciplinary misconduct case was launched against him/her, which ended in his/her unjustified dismissal.

With the assistance of GYLA, the dismissed person applied to the Batumi City Court with a request to annul the order on termination of the employment relationship, reinstatement in service, and compensation of the lost salary. The Government of the Autonomous Republic of Adjara disagreed with the claims; however, after the end of the parties' closing arguments in the city court, the defendant offered the dismissed employee to settle the dispute with an amicable settlement. Eventually, during the trial, the parties reached an amicable settlement. Under the friendly settlement act,
